Media Platforms Design Team Town & Country and The Cinema Society brought big names and big movies together last night for a special screening of the film Carol, starring Cate Blanchett and Rooney Mara. From the film to the fête that followed, the evening was one to remember. Advertisement - Continue Reading Below Adapted from the book, The Price of Salt, Carol tells the story of the relationship that forms between a divorcee-to-be (Cate Blanchett) and a young shop girl (Rooney Mara) in 1950s Manhattan. Heavyweights in fashion (Valentino, Prabal Gurung, Rachel Roy, Jenna Lyons, Nanette Lepore, and more), film (Michelle Monaghan, Gina Gershon, Alysia Reiner, Warren Elgart, Christiane Seidel, to name a few) and more filled Florence Gould Hall Theater to see Carol in all its 1950s-inspired glory. A number of the stars seen throughout the evening were spotted donning Hearts on Fire diamonds, from statement earrings to stackable rings and dainty diamond necklaces. The Warren Elgart-directed short film Breakfast at T&C opened for the main event, a production introducing (and celebrating) Town & Country's 170th anniversary. Guests partied sixty-five floors up at The Rainbow Room at Rockefeller Plaza. The rest of the night was filled with champagne, chandeliers, and plenty of good company. Attendees sported various looks, from wide-leg trousers to Thom Browne-inspired suit shorts and—the New York favorite—black-and-white mashups (as seen here on Rachel Roy). Guests sipped signature Carol cocktails from QUI, named after characters in the film: Therese (pronounced Terez, and made with QUI tequila, fresh lime, cointreau, and blood orange) and Carol (QUI tequila, fresh lime, pear, jalapeño, and cinnamon syrup). A mix of modern and vintage tunes made their way through the after party as guests nibbled on an array of refreshments, from sushi to fried chicken to apple pie bites. There was no shortage of ambiance as The Rainbow Room's signature chandeliers and window-draping mirrors brought an added bit of sparkle to an already glamorous night.
